Land Acknowledgment

IRSA acknowledges that Prince Edward Island is the traditional and unceded territory of the Mi'kmaq First Nation. For more than twelve thousand years, the Mi'kmaq people have lived on Epekwitk and have cared for this land with deep knowledge, responsibility, and connection. Today, they remain the rightful stewards and owners of this land, and we recognize their enduring presence and their continuing contributions to the life of this province. We are grateful for the opportunity to live and work on Mi'kmaq territory, and we honour the Mi'kmaq people, including Elders, community leaders, and future generations. As an organization that welcomes and supports newcomers, we are committed to learning from the truths of this land and to fostering respectful relationships with the Indigenous peoples of Epekwitk.

Mission, Vision, & Values

Our Mission

We provide settlement services and foster community connections, empowering immigrants and refugees to build a prosperous future in PEI.

Our Vision

We see our island as a welcoming, respectful, and inclusive community that supports new immigrants as full members of society and values their contributions.

Our Values

- Accountability: We take responsibility for our actions and decisions, acting with honesty, fairness, and transparency.
- Respect: We treat every client, volunteer, partner, and staff member with dignity, understanding, and compassion.
- Integrity: We uphold strong ethical standards in all that we do, ensuring professionalism and trustworthiness.
- Empathy: We listen, understand, and respond to the experiences and needs of others with care.

Message from the Board President

Vanessa Wachuku
Board President

As Board President, it is my privilege to introduce the 2025-2026 Annual Report and reflect on a year of steady progress, strengthened governance, and deepened commitment to newcomer inclusion across Prince Edward Island. IRSA's work continues to evolve as our communities grow, and this year demonstrated how thoughtful governance and clear strategic direction can support meaningful impact across the province.

The Board focused on reinforcing the structures that sustain IRSA's long-term stability. We strengthened governance practices that support accountability, transparency, and effective oversight, ensuring that IRSA remains responsive to both immediate settlement needs and longer-term integration goals. This included welcoming new Board members, supporting leadership transitions, and continuing to build a Board that reflects the skills, perspectives, and commitment needed for the work ahead. I am grateful to our Executive Officers and Board members, whose steady leadership and commitment to strong governance continue to strengthen IRSA. I also extend special appreciation to our outgoing President, Tina Saksida, whose leadership helped shape the foundation we continue to build upon.

A key milestone this year was our inaugural Board Development Session. It created space for shared learning, reflection and alignment around governance responsibilities. This work will continue as we deepen our commitment to strong, informed, and collaborative Board leadership.

Strategically, IRSA's role expanded beyond service delivery to shaping the systems that support newcomer inclusion across the province. Through the Provincial Immigration Partnership, coordinated planning, cross-sector collaboration, and structured avenues for immigrant voice continued to strengthen the province's approach to settlement and inclusion. This systems-level work reflects IRSA's vision of an Island where newcomers are welcomed, supported, and recognized as full participants in community life.

The Board also supported organizational improvements that enhance IRSA's ability to understand needs, measure outcomes, and plan effectively. Investments in data systems, program coordination, and cross-departmental collaboration will strengthen IRSA's capacity for years to come.

This work is possible because so many people including staff, volunteers, partners, funders and newcomers, continue to show up with commitment and care. On behalf of the Board of Directors, I extend my sincere appreciation to our Executive Director, Dean Constable and to every staff member whose dedication ensures that IRSA remains a strong, trusted, and community-focused organization. We are also grateful to partners and funders whose support strengthens IRSA's ability to serve communities across the Island.

As we look ahead, we remain committed to a mission that guides us and the people who inspire it. We are proud to share this record of collective achievement and grateful for the many communities who make this work possible.

A note from the Executive Director

Dean Constable
Executive Director

The 2025–2026 year was one of meaningful achievement for IRSA. Across Prince Edward Island, our teams delivered programs and services that helped newcomers establish their lives, build connections, develop skills and participate more fully in their communities. This report reflects not only the number of people we served, but the many ways our work translates into opportunity, confidence and belonging.

Operationally, it was a year of strong program delivery, innovation and continued growth. From welcoming Government-Assisted Refugees and supporting families through their first weeks in Canada, to helping more than 1,400 young people access opportunities through Youth Settlement Services, our staff worked across a wide range of needs and circumstances. Employment services helped newcomers translate their experience into meaningful work. In Summerside and across the Island, our programs continued to bring newcomers and long-time Islanders together through shared experiences and community activities.

We also introduced new approaches and expanded opportunities. Newcomer Thrive created a structured pathway into employment, with half of its participants securing work. Our first DiverseCity in Schools pilot brought cultural learning directly into the classroom, reaching approximately 400 participants. Across seven communities, DiverseCity Festivals welcomed approximately 6,500 people, demonstrating the appetite for opportunities to celebrate culture and build connections.

Behind these achievements is an organization that continues to learn, adapt and improve how it works. Our staff bring an extraordinary combination of professionalism, creativity and compassion to their roles. They navigate complex circumstances, respond to changing needs and find practical ways to help people move forward. Their work is often challenging, but its impact is evident in the stories and outcomes throughout this report.

I am particularly proud of the dedication our employees demonstrated throughout the year. Their commitment, alongside the contributions of our volunteers, funders and community partners, makes it possible for IRSA to deliver meaningful services in communities across PEI.

As we look to the year ahead, we do so with confidence in our people, our programs and the importance of the work we do. There is more to accomplish, and we remain focused on delivering responsive, effective services that help newcomers not only settle in Prince Edward Island, but find the opportunity to build a future here.

More than a service: a network of support

During the 25/26 fiscal year, IRSA's work moved between immediate settlement needs and longer-term participation. A newcomer might first need help obtaining a health card or understanding a government form, then need language practice, school support, employment guidance, or a connection to a community activity. The programs described in this report are distinct, but they connect around that practical journey.

The year also brought new approaches. A new client database strengthened IRSA's ability to understand needs and track outcomes. Newcomer Thrive added a structured pre-employment pathway. DiverseCity in Schools was launched for the first time at Sherwood Elementary. The Provincial Immigration Partnership strengthened province-wide coordination and created more structured ways for immigrant voices to inform planning.

Settlement & Integration

Settlement begins with practical questions. How do I get a PEI Health Card? Where do I apply for a SIN or Canada Child Benefit? How do I enrol my child in school? Where can I find language training, employment help, transportation information or healthcare? IRSA's Individual and Family Settlement Workers help newcomers work through these systems, beginning with a comprehensive needs assessment for each newly registered client.

Most needs assessments were completed in person, and referrals most often connected clients to employment services, language programs and youth services. Clients were generally connected to essential services within 3–5 business days of their assessment.

This year's achievement was expanding our community engagement initiatives by offering more events that brought newcomers and the broader community together. These activities encouraged connections, promoted cross-cultural understanding, and supported the long-term integration and inclusion of newcomers within the community.

Counselling Services

Settlement can bring emotional and practical challenges, including stress, anxiety, trauma, grief, family or relationship difficulties, financial insecurity, legal concerns, and feeling lost or disoriented in a new environment. Through counselling, clients received support to navigate these challenges while developing practical coping strategies, improving communication, strengthening relationships, and building resilience and confidence.

A key achievement this year was strengthening clients' emotional well-being and resilience, helping newcomers build the tools they need to navigate challenges and adjust to life in Canada.

Canada School

Canada School turned unfamiliar systems into practical knowledge. Newcomers received guidance on housing, financial literacy, education, healthcare, transportation, government and community services, as well as Canadian culture and weather. Sessions combined information with hands-on learning so participants could apply what they learned.

The strongest engagement included Immigration Pathways, Tax Clinic, IELTS/CELPIP preparation, Citizenship Preparation and recreational activities.

The tax clinic completed 331 returns. Raising the income eligibility threshold to $50,000 expanded access for more individuals and families and helped newcomers access tax credits and benefits for which they were eligible.

The first weeks matter

Resettlement Assistance Program (RAP)

For Government-Assisted Refugees, the first weeks in a new country can involve many systems at once. In 2025–26, IRSA supported 34 family groups for a total of 72 individuals. Support began with airport reception and temporary accommodation and continued through IRCC documentation, banking, healthcare, transportation, essential documents, community connections, permanent housing and life-skills development.

Essential services were connected within the first six weeks. Housing remained a major challenge because of limited availability, affordability, complex needs, accessibility requirements and barriers related to landlord acceptance. Staff therefore worked with community partners on ongoing advocacy and coordination. All arrivals secured permanent housing, and all children requiring K–12 school registration were referred and assisted through Youth Settlement Services. All arrivals were also supported with health-card registration and navigating healthcare.

Trauma-informed support was central to the approach, with services adapted to individual circumstances, experiences and readiness.

One meaningful achievement this year was helping 21 children who arrived through the Resettlement Assistance Program take their first steps in a new school system. Now enrolled in school, these children have the opportunity to learn, grow, build friendships, and begin imagining their futures in a new home.

Helping young people find their place

Youth Settlement Services (YSS)

Over 1,400 youth clients aged 5–20 were served through 174 workshops, events and activities across Charlottetown, Summerside and surrounding communities. The program combined settlement support in schools with activities designed to help young people build friendships, confidence, communication skills and connections to community life.

Girls Circle 2025 | Charlottetown

The programs within YSS

Youth Settlement Workers helped newcomer students and families understand school routines, policies, transportation, emergency procedures and community programs, with interpretation support when needed. Staff connected with school administrators at the start of the year to explain available services.

HIPPY (Home Instruction for Parents of Preschool Youngsters) supported school readiness, literacy, numeracy, language, problem solving and social-emotional development, with parents supported as their children's first teachers. Regular participation in HIPPY activities helped improve attention, independence, curiosity, problem-solving, and readiness to participate in classroom learning. Many children will enter school with greater confidence and stronger foundational skills.

IRSA x CHANCES Playgroup

Youth Sports, Homework Clubs, PD Day and March Break Camps, Summer Camps, Future Readiness and youth volunteering created different ways for children and youth to practice teamwork, leadership, communication and independence. Camps also brought youth from different backgrounds together for cultural exchange. Many youths also became more comfortable using English, navigating new environments, and accessing available community resources.

Community connections

YSS programming was strengthened through community partnerships and referrals, including relationships with Canadian Tire Jumpstart, KidSport, Trinity United Church, PEI Literacy Alliance, Mothers Matter Canada, Athletics PEI, Rowing PEI, Volleyball PEI, Credit Union Place, Charlottetown Martial Arts, and more.

"I am immensely grateful to the Future Readiness team for their invaluable assistance with making my first CV and preparing me for job interviews. With their guidance, I successfully landed a position at Old Navy. Throughout this experience, I've gained not only practical skills but also a lot of knowledge that will benefit me in future endeavors. I cannot thank them enough for their dedication and help."

"I would like to say thank you to you and YSS team and your partner at the Church for the great event for teenage girls. Today, I took both of my girls to visit the church and saw the wonderful arrangements organized by your team. My daughter and her friend were so happy when they received their nicest dresses."

"Hello, I just wanted to thank both you and the whole team for yesterday. Bastian came home happy, enjoyed the Camp Day a lot, and even made new friends. Thank you so much! You all do an incredible and wonderful job! Best regards, and we'll see you soon."

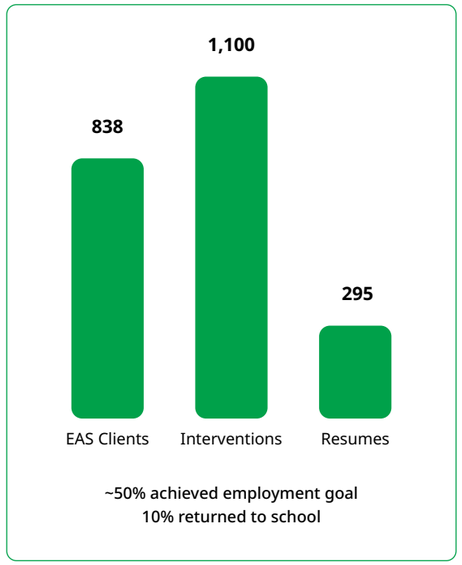
Turning skills into opportunity

Employment Assistance Services

Employment support focused on the gap between having experience and knowing how to use that experience in the Canadian labour market. The Employment Department helped clients develop Canadian-style resumes, prepare for interviews, understand workplace expectations, strengthen job searches and connect with employers.

Around 40 employers were engaged, with strongest participation from hospitality and additional connections in construction, early childhood education, manufacturing and retail. The department also hosted Connect and Cultivate, bringing employers, government representatives and community partners together to discuss newcomer hiring and workplace contributions. A Summerside job fair brought together 20 employers or organizations and 70 job seekers.



Alternate Careers Event – Construction

Impact story:

One client came to the Employment Department after being laid off while his permanent residence application was in progress. Without securing new full-time employment within a short timeframe, he and his family were at risk of losing the opportunity to continue their permanent residence application.

After reviewing the client's job search, the Employment Specialist identified that his resume and cover letter were too general and not tailored to specific positions. The client received individualized support to revise his resume, develop a targeted cover letter, and strengthen his job search approach, including guidance on Canadian workplace expectations and employer engagement.

Within one month, the client secured new full-time employment, allowing him to continue his permanent residence application. Beyond obtaining a job, this outcome provided long-term stability for the client and his family and reinforced the value of personalized employment support in helping newcomers achieve both their career and settlement goals.

First Cohort | Newcomer Thrive Program

A new pathway: Newcomer Thrive

Launched this year with funding from the RBC Foundation, Newcomer Thrive added a structured pre-employment pathway. Four cohorts served 28 participants through workplace readiness, communication, career planning, resume and interview support, employer presentations and individualized assistance. 14 participants secured part-time or full-time employment within the first three months after competition of the program, representing 50% of participants.

One participant with international mechanic experience had limited English and no Canadian work experience. Work placement allowed the participant to demonstrate their skills, leading to permanent employment and the opportunity to continue building a career in the automotive field.

Building stronger workplaces and pathways

Cultural Inclusion Training (CIT) and Intercultural Competency Training (ICT)

IRSA's employer and community training work focused on making cultural differences easier to understand in workplaces and organizations. CIT addressed cultural diversity, inclusion, stereotypes, bias and discrimination through workshops and presentations. ICT helped employers strengthen communication, collaboration and workplace relationships.

Both programs reached employers and organizations across sectors. ICT worked with 33 organizations through 11 training sessions, while CIT reached 15 organizations through 77 training sessions. The programs reported improved awareness of cultural assumptions and unconscious bias, fewer misunderstandings, stronger relationships and more inclusive practices, with sessions for government, education, healthcare, business and community groups.

Participants Quotes:

"The training was super easy to follow along with and very informative. It was engaging and taught lots of transferrable skills."

"The session was well presented and interactive making the training flow well."

"Great Instructor! Loved the hands on activities!"

"I love this session! It has a lot of great group activities! I really enjoyed it."

"This presentation was very dynamic and enriching. They provided materials and examples that were informative and served up the "ah-ha" moment when it comes to culture shock and diversity in the workplace!"

Atlantic Immigration Program (AIP)

AIP supports newcomers and employers before and during settlement through information, guidance and settlement planning. Demand was affected by immigration policy changes, but the program completed 145 settlement plans, recorded 885 client interactions, 170 employer interactions and 39 referrals. Most clients were from the greater Charlottetown area or Summerside and surrounding areas. The program also worked with employers and community partners to ensure newcomers were connected with appropriate settlement services.

Language grows through practice

English as an Additional Language (EAL)

EAL created regular opportunities to practise English in situations that matter in daily life. During the year, 120 learners received one to one tutoring with trained volunteer tutors, and 312 Conversation Circle sessions were delivered. Conversation Circles expanded to twice a week per location whenever possible across Charlottetown, Kensington, Summerside and Vanco Farms. An estimated 6,240 tutoring hours were represented by the 120 tutor-learner matches, based on an average of two hours per week over six months. The program also delivered two in-person tutor training sessions.

For newcomers with lower English proficiency, EAL developed an eight-week Foundational Everyday English program focused on basic conversation, vocabulary and everyday communication. All participants completed the course and received a Certificate of Completion.

Participants Quotes:

"My tutor gave me the confidence to speak English without being afraid of making mistakes."

"Conversation Circle helped me make friends and feel like I belong in my community."

"I can now communicate much better with my coworkers and neighbours."

Volunteer Appreciation Night 2025 | Stars in Our Community

Volunteers: Making Connections Possible

At the heart of the EAL program are the volunteers who make language learning possible. All our tutors volunteer their time to help newcomers practice English, build confidence, and feel more connected to their communities. Their contributions reflect the broader role volunteers play throughout IRSA, supporting programs, services, and activities that help newcomers feel welcomed and included. From language learning to community activities, their generosity and commitment make so much of our work possible. We are deeply grateful to all our volunteers for the time, care, and energy they share with our community.

Youth Summer Circle 2025 | Summerside

Community is built locally

Summerside Community Services

IRSA's Summerside Community Services program supported newcomers and their families across Prince County through settlement, language, employment, youth programming and community engagement. It served immigrants, refugees, temporary residents, international students, newcomer families, children, youth, adults and seniors while also creating opportunities for connections with long-time residents.

The program strengthened partnerships with the Learning Disabilities Association of PEI (LDAPEI), Harbourfront Theatre, the City of Summerside, the Summerside & Area Chamber of Commerce and STEAM PEI. These relationships expanded access to educational, cultural, recreational and employment-related opportunities.

Through STEAM PEI, summer camps and PD Day programming brought newcomer and local youth together. Participants developed friendships, teamwork, communication, creativity and confidence through shared activities. Other workshops covered First Aid/CPR, WHMIS, Fire Safety, interview and employment readiness, pizza-making and life skills, food security and local food-bank resources, Be There youth mental-health certification, and Youth Leadership certifications.

Services provided in Summerside increased confidence, stronger community connections, greater awareness of resources and increased participation in community activities. Partnerships also created opportunities for newcomers to participate in cultural, educational and recreational activities beyond the program itself.

Christmas in Canada: sharing traditions

Charlottetown Christmas Social

The Charlottetown Christmas Social offered a different kind of community experience: a free, welcoming gathering where newcomer families could experience Canadian holiday traditions while meeting other newcomers, volunteers and members of the wider community.

Approximately 500 people participated, including newcomer families and community members. Activities included photos with Santa, cookie decorating, holiday crafts, music, games and children's activities. The event blended Canadian holiday traditions with a multicultural community celebration, giving families opportunities to share traditions and build new friendships.

The Christmas Social created a seasonal community gathering focused on connection, participation and shared celebration.

Changing the system, not just navigating it

Provincial Immigration Partnership (PIP)

PIP works differently from IRSA's direct-service programs. Its role is to strengthen the relationships, structures and shared knowledge that shape newcomer settlement and inclusion across Prince Edward Island. In 2025–26, PIP served the entire province, including 58 municipalities across three counties.

A major milestone was successfully convening a re-visioned province-wide PIP Council. The partnership also established and supported the Immigrant Advisory Table, engaged cultural community leaders, supported EPIC, advanced the BIPOC Economic Integration Needs Assessment and Action Plan, collaborated with IRSA and ARAISA on At Home in the Atlantic, began work on settlement service-provider navigation and coordination, and developed the PEI PIP Community Plan and Action Plan.

Key collaborations included the BIPOC Business & Professional Network as project lead, WorkSource Alliance, Native Council of PEI and PEI Community Navigators on the economic integration needs assessment, and ARAISA and IRSA on At Home in the Atlantic.

"IAT Co-Chair Nancy Cante reflected on participating in the PIP Council meeting, saying it was "an amazing experience to see so many government departments and organizations demonstrating their genuine commitment to helping us navigate the system and, most importantly, make PEI our new home."

"Honestly, the PEI Provincial Immigration Partnership has been an ideal partner in this project! They have been enthusiastic, reliable, and committed since day one, helping us to recruit other partners and identifying opportunities to amplify this work."

- 71 Community partners
- 22 Council Members
- 20 Immigrant Advisory Table Members
- 20 Cultural Community Leaders
- 110 Conference participants
- 41+ Consultations

Final DiverseCity Festival of the 2025 Summer, Souris

DiverseCity Festivals: celebrating across PEI

A province-wide festival series

DiverseCity Festival is a free, family-friendly multicultural festival that brings newcomers, immigrants, refugees, international students, long-time Islanders, Indigenous communities and the wider public together through food, music, dance, arts, crafts, demonstrations and interactive activities.

This year, the festival was held across seven PEI communities. Approximately 6,500 attendees were reported across the seven festival locations, supported by 37 volunteers. The festival showcased cultures including Mi'kmaq, African and Black communities, Chinese, Filipino, Indian, Iranian, Japanese, Latin American, Middle Eastern, Ukrainian and Vietnamese communities, among many others. Local organizations and government partners also shared information and services.

The festival's role goes beyond a stage and a food booth. It creates a public space where newcomers can share their cultures and longtime Islanders can participate, ask questions, discover new food and art, and meet people they may not otherwise encounter. Community information booths also connect attendees to services.

The network behind the festival

The festival was supported by Canadian Heritage, ACOA, the Canadian Race Relations Foundation, the Government of Prince Edward Island, municipal governments across the seven festival communities and community organizations. Corporate and community sponsors named in the source include The Gray Group, TD Bank, Atlantic Lottery, BMO, YYG Charlottetown Airport, ADL, PEI Mutual Insurance, Maritime Electric and Greentek.

DiverseCity in Schools: A new kind of cultural learning

First launched in 2025–26

DiverseCity in Schools was not another festival stop. It was a new educational initiative designed to bring cultural learning directly into a school environment. The first pilot took place at Sherwood Elementary School in Charlottetown and focused on Grade 5 and 6 students, while also engaging the wider school community.

Approximately 400 participants took part. Grade 5 and 6 students moved through interactive cultural learning stations led by members of diverse cultural communities. They explored traditions, languages, music, clothing, daily life and customs, and had opportunities to sample foods from different cultures. The school-wide component added live cultural performances and interactive games.

The cultures represented included Indigenous (Mi'kmaq), African and Black, Chinese, Indian, Colombian and Vietnamese communities. Rather than learning about diversity only through a presentation, students experienced it through people, stories, food, music and activities.

The pilot was supported by the PEI Public Library Service, BIPOC USHR, UPEI, the Vietnamese Association on PEI, the Chinese Society of PEI, the Black Culture Society of PEI and BMO as a sponsor. Nine volunteers supported event setup, activities, stage management, guest services and logistics.

Why this milestone matters

This first pilot created a model for bringing newcomer and cultural community voices into schools in a direct, age-appropriate and participatory way. It also connected the work of cultural organizations, post-secondary education, community partners and volunteers with a school-based learning experience.
